

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method and apparatus for authenticating a user's identity are disclosed.

In one embodiment, a data collector continuously receives and collects a stream of biometric data from a user. After the data collector passes on the biometric data to a data matcher, the data matcher continuously processes the data to authenticate the user's identity.